Professional Experience:

Having been in private practice continuously since 1984 treating between 100-120 patients a week so I have extensive experience of all of the conditions that a Chiropractor is likely to see. I also have very good relationships with the local GP and Consultant community having worked in two local hospitals and shared patient care with my colleagues. My undergraduate training encompassed a wide range of established chiropractic techniques and subsequently I have attended many technique seminars so have been exposed to most of the techniques in common practice.

My other professional experience is in being part of, and leading, the organisations and institutions that run the profession in the UK and Europe. This has given me a very clear understanding of the profession in this country, and across Europe, and I have always striven to improve the quality and standard of care that chiropractors deliver to their patients. I believe that this gives an excellent foundation for being an expert witness.
