Psychiatric diagnosis – decline of phenomenological approach and pitfalls

MD THESIS:

A psychiatric study of severely injured burn victims. University of Birmingham 1981

PAST AND FUTURE DEVELOPMENTS:

Brain Injuries Development:

Regional committee member on rehabilitation setting up head injury services with (Marsland Committee)
Exeter Rd head injuries unit weekly sessions prior to development of Moor Green Unit
Head injury referrals originally in Birmingham Accident Hospital

TRACS advisor

Eating Disorder Unit:

Patients with eating disorders were traditionally seen and treated within the teaching hospital until 1984.

With the development of the catchment area service and the involvement of the Midland Nerve and Queen Elizabeth hospitals it was felt certain services needed to be protected and continued.

A specialised unit initially started within the Professorial Unit but then was disbanded.

I had continued to use beds for the use of special referrals (later to become Extra Contractual Referrals) and these gradually were increasingly occupied by patients suffering from eating disorders.

A fully fledged eating disorder unit emerged and following shared use of beds at the Woodbourne Priory hospital a dedicated Eating Disorder Unit (Reed Unit) was established at the Queen Elizabeth Psychiatric Hospital.

I remained consultant in charge until moving full time to Liaison Psychiatry in October 1997.

Liaison Psychiatry Unit:

As with eating disorders patients in general hospitals in central Birmingham were seen following referral to any of the consultant teams. With the development of catchment areas and the amalgamation of South and Central Districts the service delivered to medical and surgical departments was considered inadequate by these units.

I was keen to provide the service they required and in 1995 was able to establish (together with a senior nurse) a liaison service to the University Hospital (Q.E. & Selly Oak) as well as the unit for young disabled at Moseley Hall hospital, some services to the head injury unit and to Woodlands hospital. For some years I was on the regional committee setting up services for the head injured patients.

The length of stay for patients who had taken overdoses was cut dramatically whilst the psychiatric service to these patients and all patients from the general medical and surgical units as well as specialised units has been greatly improved. It is hoped and anticipated that the service will be further developed and expanded in line with the proposals put forward by both Royal colleges of Medicine and Psychiatry.

As a liaison psychiatrist I see referrals from neurology and neuro surgery (neuro psychiatry).

Since March 2012 I am no longer in charge but remain attached to the service.

I also assessed patients for the psychiatric diagnostic unit.

Brain Injury (Neuro psychiatry):

I had a weekly clinic and cover for the Brain Injury Rehabilitation Unit until 2019

Psychiatric Occupational Health. A weekly session with an Occupational Health Department commenced many years ago. I am hoping to develop this service and include occupational rehabilitation.

MEDICO LEGAL WORK:

I have carried out medico legal assessments since about 1976. At that time I was doing research for my MD thesis on burns and other trauma and my MD on the subject was published in 1981. I reviewed the effects of trauma and this preceded the present day terminology of PTSD as this term only became into being during the Vietnam War. I have great experience of assessing trauma, brain injury, occupational health and employment matters and general psychiatry, this includes medical negligence. I also assess Capacity.

Appointed to provide medicolegal reports for Health Ombudsman 2021

I see approximately 200 legal referrals per year with requests from Defendants, Claimants and on a Joint basis. I have been to Court many times.

MENTAL HEALTH PROMOTION UNIT:

I joined the Mental Health Promotion Working Party of the Mental Health Services Committee at its inauguration in 1982. The group was steered by Dr. John Beasley until his untimely death in 1997. I have chaired the committee since the late 1980's till the Trust ceased in about 2009.

The group can claim to have been largely responsible for creating the acceptance of the notion of good mental health and contributed to some of the ideas promulgated by The Health of the Nation.

It has spawned a research team; Professor Jim Orford (psychology), Peter Nolan (Professor of Nursing), and previously Jennifer Smith (research worker) and myself researched the attitudes and facilities for the treatment of certain mental disorders in Primary Care.

SERVICE TO MEDICAL PERSONNEL

Also assess and treat doctors for the Health Committee of the General Medical Council.

CIVIL FORENSIC PSYCHIATRY

In the latter half of the 1970's I completed a research project leading to my obtaining a Doctorate in Medicine. The research included a study of the psychological effects of accidental trauma. As a result I have become an "expert" in this field and my opinion is sought on the effects of trauma and additionally on cases of Medical Negligence.
